Exploring Journalism through Historical and Contemporary Events

Keeping an aim in mind to enhance the students' understanding of historical events and contemporary issues while developing their writing and analytical skills, the students were assigned tasks focusing on two significant topics: the historical event titled "When Buddha Smiled 50 Years Ago" and the contemporary issue of the steady rise of nuclear power for classes 6 to 8.

Class 8: Article Writing on "When Buddha Smiled 50 Years Ago"

The students demonstrated exceptional dedication and creativity in their articles, showcasing their ability to interpret and convey historical narratives effectively.

Class 7- Paragraph Writing on 'When Buddha smiled 50 years ago'

This task required them to condense the significant aspects of the event into a brief yet informative format. The students displayed their ability to distil complex historical information into clear and engaging paragraphs.

Class 6: Headline Framing on the Rise of Nuclear Power

This exercise helped the students understand the evolution of a significant technological and environmental topic and encouraged them to think critically about how information is presented to the public.

Thus, the journalism activity, conducted by Editorial Club, was a resounding success, providing students with a platform to engage with historical and contemporary issues through the lens of journalism.
